- Browne, Ryan. "Why Did the U.S. Bomb Hiroshima?" CNN, Cable News Network, 27 May 2016, 1202GMT, edition.cnn.com/2016/05/27/politics/hiroshima-obama-explainer/index.htm.

This website talks about why the US bombed Hiroshima. It was a very important site as it is considered as 'trustworthy' and it usually presents the 'American' side of any arguments.

- "Enola Gay." Britannica School, Encyclopædia Britannica, 23 Nov. 2016. school.eb.co.uk/levels/advanced/article/Enola-Gay/628407. Accessed 28 Sep. 2018.

This website talks about the plane which was used to drop the missile. It presents the interviews of some people about the missile launch. I used the website for information about the concerns of people relating to the missile.

- Freudenrich, Ph.D. Craig, and John Fuller. "How Nuclear Bombs Work." HowStuffWorks Science, HowStuffWorks, 5 Oct. 2000, <https://science.howstuffworks.com/nuclear-bomb7.htm>.

This site gave information about the Manhattan project. It also explains how a missile works from the basics. I used the website as it was one of the very trustable sites and gave detailed information even to readers with zero knowledge.

- Hersey, John. New York: Vintage books, 1989

This was a book I am about to read which was written by John Hersey who documented the survivors of the explosion and explained how they felt regarding the bomb.

- "Hiroshima and Nagasaki." Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament, cnduk.org/resources/hiroshima-and-nagasaki/.

This source gave accurate data relating to the explosion. It explained the yield of the bomb, the damage done, buildings destroyed, people died and the financial data

- "Hiroshima Why the Bomb Was Dropped." Performance by Peter Jennings, MPI Media Group, 1996.

This was a documentary i watched for getting more 'credible' evidences on why the bomb was dropped.

- "Little Boy." Wikipedia, Wikimedia Foundation, 6 Jan. 2019, en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Little_Boy.

This website discusses the basic thing about the Little Boy. It provides general information about the bomb. I used this site as my first source to know general information.

- "National History Day Research." Received by Peter Kuznick, National History Day Research.

This was an email sent to a professor, Peter Kuznick who is a Historian who studies mostly America but also Hiroshima. He writes many books on history with one of them covering my topic, Rethinking the Atomic Bombings of Hiroshima and Nagasaki: Japanese and American Perspectives. He thinks that the bombing was rather 'unnecessary.'
